FIVE THINGS THE BOOK SHOWS

1. The pace. 285 orders in 20 months, more than President Obama signed in eight years (277). 26 came on Inauguration Day, and the 225 signed in 2025 are nearly three times President Biden's first-year total of 77. (By the Numbers)
2. The courts. Of the 220 orders with full entries or Quick Takes, 192 are in effect, 12 partly blocked, 3 blocked, 12 ended and 1 revoked, and 43 face active lawsuits. The Supreme Court struck down the birthright citizenship order (EO 14160) on June 30, 2026. (Chapter 2; By the Numbers)
3. How an order ends. A court blocks it, Congress overrides or defunds it, or a later president revokes it, and revoking an order doesn't automatically undo the regulations written under it. On day one, EO 14148 revoked 67 of President Biden's orders and 11 memoranda at once. (How Executive Orders Work; The Day-One Rescissions)
4. The big-ticket orders. Tariffs on nearly every country (Chapter 3, 41 orders), a $1 million "Gold Card" path to a green card (EO 14351, Chapter 2), a Strategic Bitcoin Reserve (EO 14233, Chapter 4), and the Pentagon's second name, the Department of War (EO 14347, Chapter 6).
5. The strange ones. Federal policy "to end the use of paper straws" (EO 14208), showerhead rules (EO 14264), the Army-Navy game's TV slot (EO 14396) and an IndyCar race near the National Mall (EO 14381). (Chapter 12)

SEGMENT AND STORY IDEAS

- "More orders than Obama's eight years": what the pace means and what it doesn't.
- Which orders the courts stopped, and which are still in court.
- After the midterms: what a new Congress can and can't do about executive orders.
- The strangest executive orders of the term (all real, all in effect).

APPROACH

Nonpartisan by design: every entry is checked against the Federal Register, court records and agency documents, and opinions are attributed to the people who hold them. Confirmed errors are fixed within 7 days and listed at eo-book.com/corrections.
